Was there ever a greater drink invented than Cola? I don't think so. The amount of soda I consume is scary, so I guess you could call me an addict.

I love all flavors of soda as well as cola. A big thrill for me is trying out new or as yet undiscovered brands and finding I prefer them to the famous ones, I get a real kick out of that.

You know what really bugs the hell out of me? when the list of ingredients includes such things as corn syrup and high fructose. These have been processed so cannot be called natural ingredients.

Bearing this in mind, I'm going to point you towards a few sodas which I find delicious and think that they are seriously underrated.

One of our most popular beverages in the US is root beer, and Virgil's make the tastiest root beer that I have ever tasted. Many other people think this also, judging by the amount of awards this drink has won.

From the same manufacturer comes the wonderfully named and utterly delicious black cherry vanilla cream soda. This has a sublime flavor and so deserves to be better known than it is.

Remember what I said before about real sugar? Well it'll come as no surprise that one of my favorites is Boylan's sugar cane cola. This is a fabulous tasting cola made in a traditional style which I'm sure you'll enjoy as much as I do.

My last recommendation today is the fusion of green tea and fruit flavors that go to make the great sodas that are manufactured by Steaz. These taste amazing and are much better for you than a typical soda. The flavors include root beer, orange, raspberry and lemon & lime. These are a real treat for your taste buds.
